

SUIT THREATENS FUTURE OF THE BARGE CANAL

Private Company Wants Millions for State's Use of Oswego River.

(Special to The Evening World.)
ALBANY, July 8.—The future of the proposed $10,000,000 barge canal is seriously threatened, according to Deputy Attorney General George P. Decker, by an action just begun against the State for $2,000,000 damages by the Fulton Heat, Light and Power Company. The claim is for the alleged appropriation of private property in the bed and waters of the Oswego River and is one of several similar claims filed.

"It is doubtful if the interests of the State were ever more boldly challenged," says Mr. Decker. "The State claims the Oswego River was by nature and immemorial usage a public highway before the river was canalized, that its bed and waters were never barge canal, or if they were that the grant was subject to navigation uses. The State also claims that if this river ever became private property, it was reappropriated by the State when it was canalized in 1836. The State insists that year constructed the dam at Fulton, paid for the upland flow and has ever since maintained the dam. Under permissive statutes private parties have for many years used buildings erected in the river and enjoyed use of this power rent free.

"If the State's position is unassailable it will probably result in preventing the completion of the present canal enlargement as well as the undertaking of any State improvement of navigation hereafter, because of the increasing value of water power with wood gone and coal going. This is the first case in a very long time which has arisen directly against the State and wherein this question has been involved. It will determine whether the water power of our larger rivers and of the canal is held as an irrevocable monopoly in private hands. The resurrection of this question should provoke serious consideration as to whether uses of gratuitous water power from the canal should in future go untaxed on account of the valuable franchise enjoyed. The existing tax laws seem broad enough to include such privileges."

BICYCLIST KILLED AT UNGUARDED CROSSING.

FREEMONT, L. I., July 8.—William Zaun, fifty years of age, who was struck by the 11th local at the Bay View avenue crossing here last night, died at his home to-day from the effects of his injuries.

Zaun was riding a bicycle across the tracks when he was struck.

The crossing is one of the worst on the entire road, and for some years there has been a movement on foot to get either a flagman stationed at the crossing or have gates provided, but so far the Board of Trade has been unsuccessful. It is expected the matter will now be taken up by Corporation Tatem.

SAVED FROM DROWNING.
While bathing in the North River at Thirty-third street to-day twelve-year-old Charles Martin, of No. 47 West Thirty-first street, went beyond his depth and was rescued by Harry Morgan, of No. 48 West Thirty-first street, and removed to Bellevue Hospital.
